Hiring Manager
Placer County Library
Wherever it is, USA

Dear Hiring Manager,

You must be astonished that a celebrity of my stature would contact your unexceptional establishment. However, I assure you that this is no practical joke. I, Kim Kardashian, am seeking a respite from the stress and rigors of fame and fortune. Placer County is an area unknown to myself or anybody else, which is precisely why it is of particular interest to me. Where else could a star of my caliber find a tranquil existence of little meaning to the world? It could only be found in some backwater dump far from the burden of an adoring public. Placer County Library fits the bill- lucky you!

Your advertisement, which, incidentally, I inexplicably found stuck to my stiletto heel in the ladies room at a recent red carpet event, indicates that you are seeking a Library Services Manager. Although I am clearly unaccustomed to serving anybody, my intellect is such that no challenge is too lowly. In fact, photographic evidence will corroborate that I would be an "ass"et in any position, if you understand my meaning. I am sure you will be impressed with my leadership skills, which can be observed by the strict discipline required of my entire hair, makeup and wardrobe crew. Also noteworthy is my uncanny power to identify the exact accessories to highlight each and every outfit to its best advantage. At this juncture in my distinguished career in reality television, I have a particular fascination with the humdrum existence led by ordinary persons of average appearance, such as you. (My camera crew would, of course, require full access to your premises in order to document my new venture, which will appear in an upcoming episode entitled, "Kim acts on her social conscience.")

In anticipation of your gratefulness, I have included an autographed 8x10 glossy photo. Despite the obvious hardships imposed by my relentless social duties, my personal assistant will be in touch, as time allows. (However, time and my public relations manager may not allow, so don't get your hopes up.)

Sincerely,

Kim Kardashian
